How it works

Once the App is downloaded (available in both Android and iOS) it will allow you to locate on the map where other users live and send or receive private messages.

Alisei guarantees your privacy: users set a nickname and decide what info to share, also the location of users on the map is postcode based and it's not their exact address.

Registration

Signing up is easy: after entering your gender, age, location and what relates you to hemophilia, you can set the days and time you can be contacted and the preferred method to do so, you can also specify what languages you speak.

What is for

Alisei offers to people with hemophilia that are travelling or about to plan a trip the opportunity to get in touch with other users who resides in certain locations and are available to share info about medical infrastructure and local organizations, to share experiences and other useful tips. Briefly, Alisei's users can be a contact for each other in case of necessity when travelling locally or overseas.

Alisei is free to download and use

Alisei is freely downloadable all over the world.

It's been developed in Italy by Fondazione Paracelso Onlus who will also take care of updates and support.

Alisei's only purpose is to facilitate and promote mobility for people with hemophilia, the success of this all project will completely rely on the number of users and the variety of locations where these come from.
